

Graphic Design Volunteer:

Do you have a passion to use graphic design for good across your local community while also expanding your portfolio and skills?

Our communications team is seeking an enthusiastic community-minded volunteer graphic designer to work with creating a bank of new visually captivating designs in line with our new communications strategy. Your designs will be used externally, to recruit new volunteers, share our stories with the media and donors, as well as internally with our staff, volunteers and trustees.

As our graphic design volunteer, you will help us to bring our messaging alive through:

- Developing eye catching visuals for digital and print media, including social media graphics, posters, recruitment imagery, and more
- Strengthening our visual identity in line with our values and goals using the new messaging and approach
- Working with our great team to brainstorm other design ideas and concepts

We are flexible on both the time commitment you can give but also the day or time of day you may be available.

As a volunteer graphic design, you'll need to be:

- Proficient in graphic design software
- Ideally have some knowledge of Sharepoint intranet platforms
- Familiar with design principles, layout and typography
- Able to articulate your design ideas through your great communication skills
- Committed to delivering creative, polished and accurate work

Through the work, you will be contributing your skills to support your local community while showing your versatility and enhancing your own design portfolio.

The work would ideally suit either a graphic design student or a qualified graphic designer.

Remote or in office, working with our communications team – a mix of paid staff and volunteers.
